SPEEDERS WILL BE ARRESTED IF THEY VIOLATE STATE LAW

RECKLESS DRIVING ON ROAD TO STATE COLONY WILL BE STOPPED.

A DANGER TO LIFE AND LIMB

People Who Use Road Are Incensed At Actions of Automobile Drivers.

Unless action is taken by the authorities to stop the racing of automobiles on the brick pavements outside the city limits a tragedy is going to take place some time soon. Furthermore the pavements, particularly on North Crawford avenue between the city limits and the State colony and Country club, are being made dangerous because of the reckless driving. Auto drivers, who seem to forget that there is a state law which limits the speed at which they may travel even in the country, are using this brick boulevard for a speedway and several times lately death has been close to occupants of buggies and cars and the pedestrians along the way. Last evening a pet dog was run down and killed on this road by a reckless driver whose name was not learned, but who will be prosecuted for his violation of the law if he is apprehended. Residents along the road are righteously indignant over the manner in which the highway is used and declare that it is a menace to life and makes the road a danger to them instead of a convenience.

Twenty-five miles per hour is the limit of speed that may be maintained on this highway and the driver who exceeds this limit is liable to be arrested and fined upon complaint of anyone who sees him. Drivers may rest assured that the people who use that road do not propose to be imposed upon any longer and are ready to stand upon their legal rights to maintain law enforcement there.

WILL TAKE VOTE ON INSURANCE FOR SOLDIERS

BOMB WITH COMPOUND INTEREST

French Reprisals Continued Last Night—German Town of Baden Bombed.

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
"We shall bomb Germany with compound interest," Premier Lloyd George is quoted in the London press as declaring to a London crowd in promising that Great Britain would soon launch reprisals for the German air raids on London.

The French reprisals were continued last night. French airmen dropped bombs on the town of Baden, 55 miles beyond the French frontier. More than seven tons of bombs were dropped on various military objectives in German territory.

Along the French front the artillery duels were vigorous at many points. The activity was especially marked north of Verdun, where the French apparently are preparing an attack to recover a few trenches the Crown Prince troops retained when their main attack from the force was hurled back north of hill 344 yesterday. A German attempt to attack east of Rheims was broken up by French artillery.

EVIDENCE SHOWS MAN FOUND NEAR HARMON WAS SLUGGED IN HEAD

HAD BEEN SEEN IN HARMON WITH TWO COMPANIONS DURING AFTERNOON AND EARLY EVENING AND THREE HAD BEEN ORDERED OUT OF TOWN WHEN THEY BECAME INVOLVED IN QUARREL—TOWERMAN AT RAILROAD CROSSING WEST OF HARMON HEARD THEM CURSING AND ARGUING AS THEY PASSED AND HE LATER FOUND THE BODY BESIDE TRACK—ALL EFFECTS THAT MIGHT LEAD TO IDENTIFICATION HAD BEEN REMOVED IN HURRIED SEARCH BY THOSE WHO HAD TAKEN HIS LIFE.

BUT ONE MARK FOUND ON HIS BODY

That the unknown man whose body was found near the C. B. & Q. and C. & N. W. tracks about four miles east of Nelson heard three men passing the tower and he testifies that they were cursing and quarreling then. Later the towerman found the body of the slain man along the tracks.

All circumstances point to murder, for no train passed after the towerman heard the three, and the nature of the blow which caused death is such that it could not have been inflicted without leaving other marks.

One Mark Behind Ear.
There is but one mark on the body, a contusion which did not break the skin, about three inches long and a half inch wide, below and to the rear of the right ear. The blow, delivered either with some instrument or the bare fist, caused a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, the resultant hemorrhage probably causing almost instant death.

The officials believe that during an argument one of the victim's companions slugged him, probably not with the intention of killing him, but that when the two saw the fellow was dead they hurriedly searched him to remove all evidence that might lead to identification and made their getaway.

The man's pockets showed they had been hurriedly searched, for every pocket was partly drawn out and the only articles found on his person were two books of cigarette papers, two broken combs, a button hook, a package of tobacco and a piece of brown wrapping paper on which was written:

"Lead Balzar Benindoor, Davenport, Father Weider."

Inquiry Developed Nothing.
Father McKee, pastor of the Catholic church at Harmon, was appealed to but could learn of no "Father Weider," and investigation perfunctorily conducted by the Davenport authorities has failed to attach significance to the inscription on the paper.

All evidence has been turned over to States Attorney Edwards and Sheriff Phillips and an investigation that may lead to establishing the identity of the victim and his companions has been started.

Description of Victim.
The remains of the unfortunate man were taken to the Staples undertaking parlors in Dixon last night and will be kept a few days in hope that his identity may be established. He was about 25 or 26 years of age, about 5 feet, 9 inches in height, and weighed about 145 or 150 pounds; dark complexion and had dark hair. The second tooth left from the center of the upper jaw is missing. He was fairly well dressed and clean, and was evidently not a tramp.

It is believed in some quarters that the three men may have been members of one of the gangs working for the Northwestern at Nelson, and an investigation among them has been undertaken.

GRIFFITH COUNTY ADMINISTRATOR

In connection with the work of the Food Administration in Lee county, State Administrator Harry A. Wheeler has appointed L. S. Griffith, county agent, as administrator of the county, and C. C. ## KILL 10 IN LONDON RAID

Twenty German Machines Took Part in Attack on City.

London, Oct. 3.—German air frightfulness has reached its most acute stage. In Monday night's raid over London and the southeastern counties more than 20 great German machines of the Gotha type took part, it was estimated, and considerable damage was done not only by the bombs dropped from the airplanes, but by the rain of shrapnel from the high angle guns, which fell back upon the city. BIG WAR TAX BILL
WINS IN SENATE; TO WILSON TODAY

$2,700,000,000 Revenue Measure Will Be Signed by the President at Once.

WILL BECOME LAW TONIGHT

Senator La Follette Cast the Only Dissenting Vote Against Bill, But Offered No Objection to Its Passage.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The $2,700,000,000 war revenue bill passed the senate yesterday with the only announced dissenting vote coming from Senator La Follette, although the senator did not seek a roll call on the measure and offered no objection to its passage.

The bill will be in the hands of President Wilson this afternoon. It was engrossed an hour after it had passed the senate. At noon today it will be signed by Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall. It becomes a law when approved by the president.

Every professional man in the United States will be subject to the excess profits tax in the war revenue bill, if his income is more than $6,000 a year; this in excess of all existing taxes and proposed income taxes which will be effective when the war tax becomes a law.

Simmons Explains.

Senator Simmons explained why the conferees had reached agreement through compromises and spoke in justification of the newspaper and magazine taxes, against which there had been a protest. He had inserted in the record a long letter from Postmaster General Burleson defending the taxes as carried in the bill.

Senator Simmons made the statement that recapitulations of estimated revenues to be derived from the bill showed it would yield about $200,000,000 less than was originally estimated. The losses would come from overestimations of the yields from the income and war profits taxes largely, but, he asserted, the bill was the most equitable and evenly distributed burden bearer that could be drawn. Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican leader, defended the bill as a fair and impartial measure.

Fordney's Figures.

Representative Fordney of Michigan, an expert on the tariff, explained by figures how the bill would operate on the three forms of business organization, corporations, partnerships and individuals.

In addition to showing how far into incomes and profits the bill will reach, Mr. Fordney's tables indicate that the task of figuring corporation partnership and individual taxes will be a gigantic one, and that an enormous amount of detail work will be exacted from both the treasury officials and the accountants of business houses.

Representative Fordney gave to each of his three forms of business a capital of $100,000 and an income of $50,000. In the partnership he allowed three partners, who would be assessed for individual taxes as well as standing the excess profits tax upon their 70 per cent return on the $100,000 capital.

His table, which follows, shows the total amount of income, corporation and excess profit taxes that would be paid (a) by a corporation with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000; (b) by a partnership of three parties with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000; (c) by an individual engaged in business with $100,000 capital and $50,000 of net profits.

(A) Corporation with capital of $100,000 and net income of $50,000. Deducting from net income 9 per cent of the capital, the maximum deduction, plus $3,000, a total deduction of $12,000 shows the taxable income to be

Tax on amount in excess of deduction and not over 15 per cent of capital, $3,000 at 20 per cent—$600.

Tax on amount of profit in excess of 15 per cent of capital and not over 20 per cent, $5,000 at 25 per cent—$1,250.

Tax on amount in excess of 20 per cent of capital and not over 25 per cent, $5,000 at 35 per cent—$1,750.

Tax on amount in excess of 25 per cent and not over 33 per cent of capital, $8,000 at 45 per cent—$3,600.

Tax on amount in excess of 33 per cent of capital, $17,000 at 60 per cent—$10,200.

Total excess profits taxes—$17,400. Net income—$50,000. Excess profits tax—$17,400. Net subject to income tax, $32,600 at 6 per cent—$1,956. Total tax—$19,356.

Partnership Tax.

(B) A partnership of three parties with capital of $100,000 and net income of $50,000.

Deducting from net income 9 per cent of capital invested plus $6,000, a total deduction of $15,000, shows the taxable income to be $35,000.

Tax on amount of income in excess of deduction and not over 15 per cent of capital—nothing.

Tax on amount of income in excess of 15 per cent but not over 20 per cent of capital, $5,000 at 25 per cent—$1,250.

Tax on amount of income in excess of 20 per cent but not over 25 per cent of capital, $5,000 at 35 per cent—$1,750.

Tax on amount of income in excess of 25 per cent but not over 33 per cent of capital, $8,000 at 45 per cent—$3,600.

Tax on amount of income over 33 per cent of capital, $17,000 at 60 per cent—$10,200.

Total excess profits tax—$16,800. Net income—$50,000.

Less excess profits tax—$16,800. Income for distribution—$33,200.

Share of each partner—$11,067.

Income Tax for Each Partner.

$9,967 at 2 per cent—$199.34.

$7,067 at 2 per cent—$141.34.

$2,500 at 1 per cent—$25.

$2,500 at 2 per cent—$50.

$1,067 at 2 per cent—$21.34.

Total for each—$429.69.

Total for all three—$1,289.07.

Total tax—$18,689.07.

Individual Tax.

(C) Individual engaged in business with capital of $100,000 and net income of $50,000. The net profits tax would be the same as on a partnership, which is shown above to be $16,800.

Net income—$50,000.

Deduct excess profits tax—$16,800.

Income subject to income tax—$33,200.

Income tax of individual on $33,200.

$31,200 at 2 per cent—$624.

$29,200 at 2 per cent—$584.

$2,500 at 1 per cent—$25.

$2,500 at 2 per cent—$50.

$2,500 at 4 per cent—$100.

PAINS SHARP AND STABBING

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. ETTA DORION, Ogdensburg, Wis.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

Kenneth, the sturdy hopeful of Mr. and Mrs. James Ketchin, celebrated his eighth birthday anniversary at his home on North Ottawa avenue Monday afternoon by inviting a number of his boy companions to partake of his abundant hospitality. We have not been informed as to the number of participants in the delightful occasion, but from sounds issuing from the Ketchin home about 4 p. m., there must have been hosts. The young gentleman, who is "strictly boy," informed his mother before the event that if any girls were to be present he would forego the festivities. However, we are informed on reliable authority that a few little maids were welcomed, and participated in the exquisite luncheon, likewise the games which were enjoyed out of doors later, Kenneth is much like "old men," after all.

A wiener dinner, the wiener's augmented by many good things such as the good cooks of the class knew how to prepare so well, was enjoyed at noon. The feast was spread on long tables in the delicious Lowell Park sunshine, which has a quality all its own. The afternoon was spent by the men in testing their ability at quiet and other outdoor games and by the ladies in knitting and chat. Everyone reports the day as delightful and as all were present at Sunday School the next morning the effects of the picnic were certainly good. L. B. A pleasant musical and dramatic program followed, which was fully appreciated by the club members. Miss Beatrice Howell gave an attractive group of readings from Rhymes of a Red Cross Man, verses full of humor and pathos, especially moving at this time. Miss Alice Coppins, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Eleanor Coppins, rendered two violin solos, Souvenir de Tschakovsky and Cadman's Land of the Sky Blue Water. Miss Winnie Fred Roe gave two piano numbers, Valse and Nocturne by Chopin. These young musicians were particularly well received as they gave excellent renditions of the numbers chosen.

For National Army Man

Mr. and Mrs. William Shafter entertained Tuesday evening with a scramble dinner honoring Dwight Reith who leaves soon for Camp Grant. The table decorations bespoke patriotism—tiny flags in standards stood by each plate as favors, the napkins were patriotic in design, red salvia were the flowers forming the centerpiece, and a band of red, white, and blue crepe paper bordered the table. Directly back of Mr. Reith's place at the head of the table, a monster flag formed the wall decoration. The dinner was an especially delicious one, with all imaginable good things served. Just as the guests were being seated, a wrist watch was slipped upon the plate of the guest of honor as a gift from the company. His surprise and pleasure was great and was expressed informally as the company called for no formal speech. KILL 10 IN LONDON RAID

Twenty German Machines Took Part in Attack on City.

London, Oct. 3.—German air frightfulness has reached its most acute stage. In Monday night's raid over London and the southeastern counties more than 20 great German machines of the Gotha type took part, it was estimated, and considerable damage was done not only by the bombs dropped from the airplanes, but by the rain of shrapnel from the high angle guns, which fell back upon the city. Ten persons were killed.

James Buckley of Amboy was here Saturday.

BIG WAR TAX BILL WINS IN SENATE; TO WILSON TODAY

$2,760,000,000 Revenue Measure Will Be Signed by the President at Once.

WILL BECOME LAW TONIGHT

Senator La Follette Cast the Only Dissenting Vote Against Bill, But Offered No Objection to Its Passage.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The $2,760,000,000 war revenue bill passed the senate late yesterday with the only announced dissenting vote coming from Senator La Follette, although the senator did not seek a roll call on the measure and offered no objection to its passage. The bill will be in the hands of President Wilson this afternoon. It was engrossed an hour after it had passed the senate. At noon today it will be signed by Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall. It becomes a law when approved by the president.

Every professional man in the United States will be subject to the excess profits tax in the war revenue bill, if his income is more than $6,000 a year; this in excess of all existing taxes and proposed income taxes which will be effective when the war tax becomes a law.

Simmons Explains.

Senator Simmons explained why the conferees had reached agreement through compromises and spoke in justification of the newspaper and magazine taxes, against which there had been a protest. He had inserted in the record a long letter from Postmaster General Burleson defending the taxes as carried in the bill.

Senator Simmons made the statement that recapitulations of estimated revenues to be derived from the bill showed it would yield about $200,000,000 less than was originally estimated. The losses would come from overestimations of the yields from the income and war profits taxes largely, but, he asserted, the bill was the most equitable and evenly distributed burden bearer that could be drawn. Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican leader, defended the bill as a fair and impartial measure.

Fordney's Figures.

Representative Fordney of Michigan, an expert on the tariff, explained by figures how the bill would operate on the three forms of business organization, corporations, partnerships and individuals.

In addition to showing how far into incomes and profits the bill will reach, Mr. Fordney's tables indicate that the task of figuring corporation partnership and individual taxes will be a gigantic one, and that an enormous amount of detail work will be exacted from both the treasury officials and the accountants of business houses.

Representative Fordney gave to each of his three forms of business a capital of $100,000 and an income of $50,000. In the partnership he allowed three partners, who would be assessed for individual taxes as well as standing the excess profits tax upon their 50 per cent return on the $100,000 capital.

His table, which follows, shows the total amount of income, corporation and excess profit taxes that would be paid (a) by a corporation with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000; (b) by a partnership of three parties with a capital of $100,000 and a net income of $50,000; (c) by an individual engaged in business with $100,000 capital and $50,000 of net profits.

(A) Corporation with capital of $100,000 and net income of $50,000. Deducting from net income 9 per cent of the capital, the maximum deduction, plus $3,000, a total deduction of $12,000 shows the taxable income to be

Tax on amount in excess of deduction and not over 15 per cent of capital, $3,000 at 20 per cent—$600.

Tax on amount of profit in excess of 15 per cent of capital and not over 20 per cent, $5,000 at 25 per cent—$1,250.

Tax on amount in excess of 20 per cent of capital and not over 25 per cent, $5,000 at 35 per cent—$1,750.

Tax on amount in excess of 25 per cent and not over 33 per cent of capital, $8,000 at 45 per cent—$3,600.

Tax on amount in excess of 33 per cent of capital, $17,000 at 60 per cent—$10,200.

Excess profits tax—$17,400.

Partnership Tax.

(B) A partnership of three parties with capital of $100,000 and net income of $50,000.

Deducting from net income 9 per cent of capital invested plus $6,000, a total deduction of $15,000, shows the taxable income to be $35,000.

Tax on amount of income in excess of deduction and not over 15 per cent of capital—nothing.

Tax on amount of income in excess of 15 per cent but not over 20 per cent of capital, $5,000 at 25 per cent—$1,250.

Tax on amount of income in excess of 20 per cent but not over 25 per cent of capital, $5,000 at 35 per cent—$1,750.

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. ETNA DORION, Ogdensburg, Wis.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

A "Woman Hater"

Kenneth, the sturdy hopeful of Mr. and Mrs. James Ketchin, celebrated his eighth birthday anniversary at his home on North Ottawa avenue Monday afternoon by inviting a number of his boy companions to partake of his abundant hospitality. We have not been informed as to the number of participants in the delightful occasion, but from sounds issuing from the Ketchin home about 4 p. m., there must have been hosts. The young gentleman, who is "strictly boy," informed his mother before the event that if any girls were to be present he would forego the festivities. However, we are informed on reliable authority that a few little maids were welcomed, and participated in the exquisite luncheon. Likewise the games which were enjoyed out of doors later, Kenneth is much like "old men," after all.

Neighbourly Class Picnic

The Neighbourly Sunday Class of the Methodist church picnicked at Lowell Park on Saturday. Forty-three members of the class were present, enjoying the delightful autumn day in the beautiful Lowell woods. The trip to the park was made by automobiles at eleven o'clock in the forenoon and the shadows were beginning to lengthen before the last one reluctantly departed. A winner dinner, the winner's augmented by many good things such as the good cooks of the class know how to prepare so well, was enjoyed at noon. The feast was spread on long tables in the delicious Lowell Park sunshine, which has a quality all its own. The afternoon was spent by the men in testing their ability at quiet and other outdoor games and by the ladies in knitting and chat. Everyone reports the day as delightful and as all were present at Sunday School the next morning the effects of the picnic were certainly good. L. B. Neighbour is teacher of the class and Judge Watts the class president.

Phidian Art Club.

The Phidian Art Club held the first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. L. D. Dement on Tuesday afternoon.

The club voted to donate five dollars to the National Library Association's fund for soldiers.

A large number was present and applauded the patriotic address of the president, Mrs. Mahlon Forsyth. A pleasant musical and dramatic program followed, which was fully appreciated by the club members. Miss Beatrice Howell gave an attractive group of readings from Rhymes of a Red Cross Man, verses full of humor and pathos, especially moving at this time. Miss Alice Coppins, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Eleanor Coppins, rendered two violin solos, Souvenir de Tschakovsky and Cadman's Land of the Sky Blue Water. Miss Winnie Fred Roe gave two piano numbers, Valse and Nocturne by Chopin. These young musicians were particularly well received as they gave excellent renditions of the numbers chosen.

For National Army Man

Mr. and Mrs. William Stogrower entertained Tuesday evening with a scramble dinner honoring Dwight Reipa who leaves soon for Camp Grant. The table decorations bespoke patriotism—tiny flags in standards stood by each plate as favors, the napkins were patriotic in design, red salvia were the flowers forming the centerpiece, and a band of red, white, and blue crepe paper bordered the table. Directly back of Mr. Reipa's place at the head of the table, a monster flag formed the wall decoration. The dinner was an especially delicious one, with all imaginable good things served. Just as the guests were being seated, a wrist watch was slipped upon the plate of the guest of honor as a gift from the company. His surprise and pleasure was great and was expressed informally as the company called for no formal speech. The dining was followed by a pleasant evening at "Five Hundred," such as this same group of friends have enjoyed many a time together.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Reipa, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Boos, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoberg, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leydig, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Louie Schumann, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Snice.

PENSIONS FOR WAR ORPHANS

Judge Neil of Chicago, well known in connection with his "Motors" Pensions' scheme, which has been adopted by 20 states in America, is now in London where the authorities are taking the greatest interest in the project. In an interview with Edward Marshall, Judge Neil explained the importance of his proposals in their bearing on the great war problem. He said: "To me, the millions of children who must be reared without financial aid from fathers obviously present the biggest problem the world ever saw. Britain, France, Italy, Russia, Germany, Austria and perhaps America will find themselves unable to continue by the old methods and survive as a nation. If the widows and orphans of this war are permitted to struggle unaided through life and be degenerated by inevitable poverty decades of progress will be lost. My claim is that if the United States has the right to tax all property to educate its children, it has an equal right to tax all property to be sure the children it educates are well fed and reared with intelligence sufficient to get the best out of education.

Destruction of life is abnormal now, not only because men are dying in the trenches but because they are dying more rapidly than usual elsewhere.
Excessive work in war industries is accompanied by increased death rate among men, partly due to the fact that work is carried on at tremendous pressure and partly to the fact that the absence of the strongest in trenches frequently throws overstrain upon the weak and aged.

THE ENDLESS CHAIN.

It's getting so that a little thing like the raise in the price of milk makes slight impression. The public is being soaked from every quarter so rapidly and so effectively that it is numb. And you can't find out who is to blame because everybody has an alibi. If the milkman has to pay more for his milk, he has to charge more, and if the milk producer has to pay more for the feed for his cows, he has to charge more, and the farmer says he has to pay more for his labor, and the laboring man has to pay more for his living, milk for instance. If wages went up as fast as living costs, everything would be hunky-dory, provided there was coin enough to keep them all moving, but the higher wages go, the higher the things we buy must go, and the higher the things we buy go, the higher the wages—but what's the use?
There is no sense in getting a handful of money just to hand it over to somebody else. There must be a stop to the soaring of prices of foodstuffs because a whole lot of people are not getting and cannot get big wages, and they must suffer from the want of things which they really need and which every human being is entitled to have his share of if he is trying to do his share in the world.

If the government can ask men to give their blood to the country, it can ask men to forego war profits and make living possible for women and children and those who cannot afford to pay excessive prices for food.

TOBACCO AND BIBLES

A convention of the Keystone League of Christian Endeavor at Freeport condemned, by resolution, the practice of sending cigarettes and tobacco to soldiers, and resolved to present a pocket bible to each Keystone member going into the army. The gift of the bible is proper and should be encouraged. The resolution against the tobacco is narrow. Our boys in the army need the comfort and solace that tobacco will give them, and the man who would deny them this little comfort is honest in his conviction, but he surely has never been a soldier. The bibles are a good thing for the boys, and will undoubtedly help them. If every German militarist had read and believed the bible in its true light this war would never have been started.
But if tobacco will make the life in the army camps and the trenches more pleasant, which it surely will, and will make the American soldiers more content with their lot and keep them in better fighting spirit, which it surely will, we say give them all the tobacco and cigarettes they want.
They have no bed of roses. Give them every comfort they can have that will be in keeping with health and army discipline.

A German aviator has dropped a bomb on a hospital back of the British lines and killed three nurses, not to mention the murder of a number of wounded soldiers. He was a brave German and he will get the iron cross.
That is the kind of nation we have to fight, and that is why we are fighting.

The fellow that talks for Germany is against the United States and no amount of sentimental twaddle about being unable to forget his love for the land of his birth makes him anything else but a traitor to the land of his adoption. He has no 'em. Can 'em along with the Kaiser.

The members of the coal trust were just getting their heads together with their arms linked about each others necks to sing, in close harmony, that popular song about how the money rolls in, etc., when Uncle Sam set the dog on them and stopped the serenade.

Reports to the Red Cross are to the effect that not a Belgian girl above the age of 17 has escaped maltreatment at the hands of the Germans. The black record the Huns have made during this war will be to their eternal shame.

What has become of the old-fashioned German who said last winter that Great Britain would be brought to her knees in ninety days by the submarine?

Call To Veterans.

L. W. Mitchell, acting Commander

the following call to the old soldiers to participate in the parade:
Attention, Comrades! Tomorrow, Oct. 4, a part of Lee county's quota of soldiers will go from Dixon. Can we not, will we not, repeat the attention which we paid the soldiers who have gone before?
Comrades, the young soldiers are "going away." We, too, are fast "going away." Let us not neglect an op-impulse.

It may be our last opportunity to

The patriotic citizens of Dixon willgame.

see to it that the same arrangements are carried out tomorrow that were followed when 40 per cent of Lee county's soldiers left Dixon for Camp Grant. Should you not be able to

SUBLETTE GAVE OHIO
BAD BEATING SUNDAY

DEFEAT OF 11 TO 3 WAS WORST ENCOUNTERED DURING PRESENT SEASON

The Sublette baseball team went to Ohio Sunday and with the assistance of Ed Morrissey, a star first baseman, and James Dempsey, also a fast player, administered to Ohio the worst defeat they received this year, score 11 to 3. The clouting of the Sublette team drove H. Buckley from the box in the fifth inning. W. Johns came to his rescue but could do little with the sluggers playing on the Sublette team. B. Adelle caught for Sublette, and caught a fine, clean game. The feature of the game was the pitching of Gilbert Mahach for Sublette; at no time was he in danger, having the Ohio boys at his mercy all the way.
The entire team played an errorless game.

TROOPS IN FRANCE ARE LEARNING DISCIPLINE OF FOREIGN ARMIES

Officers are Inclined to Follow Stiffneck British System, But French Democracy Is Invading Ranks—Our New Crop of Reserve Officers are Greater Sticklers for Form Than Most West Pointers.

By HEYWOOD BROWN.
(Accredited to the Pershing Army in France by the New York Tribune and Syndicate.)

American Expeditionary Army.—“The most important factor in the American army will be discipline,” said an officer shortly after the troops came out to the training camps. “If it has good discipline it will be a good army; if it has bad discipline, it will be a bad army. I can watch a regiment stand at attention and tell you whether or not it can fight effectively.”

The question remains as to what sort of discipline the American army will have. Some observers say that there are two kinds of good discipline—French discipline and English discipline. Under the French system there are let-down periods. Off duty an officer may fraternize with enlisted men to an extent which would scandalize the English army. This is due, in part, to the fact that the armies are composed differently. The English army is much more stratified than the French. It has, as the American army had before the war, a distinct officers' class. An Englishman of certain education receives a commission as a matter of course. Under the volunteer system, which prevailed at the beginning of the war, the English volunteer of the upper or upper middle class did not offer his services until he was prepared to fulfill the duties of an officer. The French draft, on the other hand, thrust many a distinguished citizen into the ranks. A sergeant in the instruction division here was one of the most popular playrights in France before the war, and the other day a grimy little man climbed from a coal cart to tell me in perfect English that he had been an assistant professor of Romance languages in one of the great American universities—Cornell, I think—before the call came.

Of course, when the word English discipline is used it falls short of the British army. Australian discipline and English discipline are vastly different. There is a popular story about an Anzac colonel in Egypt who drew up his men and told them: “An English general is coming here today to inspect the regiment, and remember, d— you, don't call me ‘Bill’ until he goes.”

Canadians Well Disciplined.
An instructor at a British training camp told me that the Canadians were now among the best disciplined troops in the army, but that the Australians still gave occasional trouble. “Every now and then,” he said, “a couple of them will sneak down to the woods and camp out alone for a couple of days.”

British officers will tell you that, although the Australians fight well, their losses are much higher than they would be with better discipline. If there is such a possibility as an absolutely democratic army, it has been much impaired by the poor work of the Russian republican army. The scheme of submitting each plan of attack to the soldiers before it is ordered cannot be said to have proved effective.

The question of discipline in the American army is complicated by many factors. Before the war there was a gulf between officers and men fully as wide as that in the English army. It was not due to lack of democracy. It was a gulf founded on fundamental differences of character and education. On one hand, there was the officer class, carefully selected and carefully trained, and on the other hand, the enlisted men, haphazardly accepted from the floating population. Professional armies the world over are recruited largely from the industrially inefficient during times of peace.

An American regular of no great promise was bewailing the fact that an officer had hopped him because he executed a command imperfectly. “Well,” his companion answered, “wouldn't the farmer bawl you out if he told you to feed the horses and you didn't give them as much as he told you?” It was the typical point of view of the old type of professional soldier. He was drawn from the “bawled out” class and he could be governed only by “bawled out” methods.

Things are largely changed now. More than half the American army in France is made up of men who joined after the declaration of war. They were not jobless or inefficient. Multitudes of reasons sent them into the ranks. A few wanted to make the world safe for democracy. Many more desired adventure, an ocean voyage and a trip to Paris and perhaps Berlin.

“I was marching my men along the other day,” said a young captain, “when I heard a private give the cheer of the University of Nebraska. I ran up to him and said: ‘You didn't do that very well. I'm a Nebraska man myself. Let's do it together.’”

All Sorts of Officers.
There are then men drawn from many classes in the army and there will be more. Already there are all sorts of officers. There is the regular from West Point, the occasional regular from civil life, the officer who came through the Fort Leavenworth training school, the reserve officers and a number of former “non-coms” recently elevated to commissions. The greatest sticklers for discipline are the reserve officers.

“I was talking to a soldier in the street,” said an old West Pointer, “and he was telling me he had too much money to spend. ‘I can't use half of it,’ he said, ‘and I waste it on things I don't want. Look at the bunch of cigars I bought. Take a handful.’ I took three, but I was mighty sorry afterwards, because I had with me a young fellow, just commissioned second lieutenant, and he was almost shocked to death that I should take cigars from a soldier.”

The officers who rose from non-coms are also somewhat stiff and formal in the exercise of their new-found honors. All have been transferred from their regular regiments, so that they shall not be associated with the enlisted men they knew before they held commissions. Some officers believe in leading their men, while others in driving them, while still a third class combine the two methods. One of the best young officers I have seen in the army is absolutely informal with his men at times. He comes to their concerts and hands cigars to the quartette and consults with them as to what song they shall sing.

“Captain, do you like ‘Cathleen?’” the big soldier who sang tenor would ask, and the captain would answer: “Does it go like this?” humming a bar, and then add: “Yes, that's a good one; let's have it.” He could be stern enough upon occasion, and he had the best of his men to know the reasons for things. He was fond of letting them get his point of view about things. Thus, when he found some soldiers drinking too much, soon after their landing, he called a conference and told them that it had to stop.

If the Whole Army Drank.
“Some of you men are spending all your money on booze,” he said, “and getting stinko, pinko, sloppy drunk. I won't do. A few old privates got drunk, but don't copy them. It's just because of that they're old privates. I'm going to choose my non-coms from you, but not the men who drink. You've drunk yourselves out of a commission, sergeant. I was going to recommend you, but how can I do it now? Just look at the way I see it. If I took my pay in a lump I could buy every saloon in the town and stay drunk for two years. (‘I had to exaggerate a little,’ he confessed when he told the story to me afterward). What do you suppose would happen then? Suppose the majors and the colonels and the generals and the whole bunch got drunk, what would happen to the army? Don't forget that this is your army as much as it is mine. That's all today.”

The chief and most able member of the English school of discipline is General Pershing. He puts the drive in the army. His inspections are masterpieces of thoroughness and he is exceedingly stern with all inefficients, whether they are officers or soldiers. Slouchy bearing annoys him fearfully and he takes an active and penetrating interest in shoes, buttons and bright metal. He is exceedingly chary of praise. Probably nobody in the army will ever call him Papa Pershing, but for all that he is a Roman father to his men.

Bulgaria Will Hold Hers—Maybe.
Berlin.—The reichstag resolution demanding peace without annexations and indemnities is bitterly resented in Bulgaria and threatens to lead to a breach between that country and the central powers.

“No matter what Germany and Austria-Hungary may do, the Bulgarians are going to keep all territories conquered by them,” says the Sofia correspondent of the Lokalanzeiger.

“I have interviewed a number of the leading statesmen and politicians and found them all extremely indignant over the action of the reichstag. They regard the peace resolution as a breach of faith and insist that the compact made when their country entered the war be kept.”

“Without exception, they declared that Bulgaria was solemnly promised all Serbian districts inhabited by Bulgarians, together with the Dobruja, and that their armies will not evacuate these territories at a command from Berlin and Vienna. Premier Radoslavoff has expressed himself in a similar manner.”

Meatless Days on Dinners.
Portland, Ore.—Meatless meals on Mondays and Fridays are now served on the dining cars of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railroad, a part of the Hill system. In addition, chefs have been cautioned to waste as little food as possible. Passengers are handed small suggestion cards indicating ways by which waste may be cut down. All this comes as the result of an appeal from the food administration at Washington, the railroad officials announce.

DIXON HIGH NEWS.
Football Practice.

Wednesday evening saw the varsity out in action after their hard game on Saturday. Many of the boys are a little stiff yet, but aside from that, there were few casualties. The team will get right down to business for the LaSalle-Peru game this coming Saturday.

Rooters Going Saturday.
A number of football followers are contemplating going to LaSalle the coming Saturday to see the game between the two high schools.

To DeKalb.

Is Now King.
Clarence Vaile is now a King, because Clark Hess crowned him with a book.

Bank.
At singing Clarence is a whale, they say.
Why, he handles a dollar bill like a bale of hay.
At arithmetic he is a wonder Until he gets a brain storm and it snows him under.

At animal husbandry
He certainly is there.
He can count chickens out by the pair.
In art drawing he drew a check
And told his teacher
He was smart, by heck!

Gave Duet.
Mr. Clarence Vaile and Miss Ruth Rosenthal delightfully entertained the music class Tuesday with their sweet voices. Leota Rice accompanied them with her spare drum.

Elected President.
Byron Brooks, ex-high school student, was elected president of the Senior class at the Academy, Carthage College.

Gave Dinner.
Clark Hess entertained a few fellows of the Freeport football team over Sunday.

Mrs. Phelps' music class meets as usual Tuesday. The class is the largest for years and they are progressing nicely.

The Frolicers will not have a dancing party this Friday, but they will give off a week from Friday.

Gerald Berry is trying to raise some hair on his head.

Good bye, fair reader, 'till we meet again.

4,000 TURKS ARE CAPTURED

Big British Victory Over Enemy in Mesopotamia.

London, Oct. 3.—The Kaiser's dream of an empire from the North sea to the Persian gulf received another blow in the announcement of the capture by General Maude, with Romadie, in Mesopotamia, of 4,000 prisoners, in addition to a number of guns and vast quantities of stores and ammunition.

The British forces are continuing their advance, driving the Turks before them. The capture of Ramadie was effected by outflanking the Turkish army, cutting off the garrison and overpowering them by sheer force of men and guns.

About 320 miles of the Bagdad railway in Mesopotamia between Basra on the Persian gulf and a point 60 miles northwest of Bagdad is now in possession of General Maude's forces.

This rail line was part of the Kaiser's scheme to control trade from the North sea to the gulf.

GERMAN “ACE” SLAIN IN FIGHT

Lieut. Vosse Killed During Battle With British Airman.

British Headquarters in France and Belgium, Oct. 3.—The body of the famous German aviator, Lieutenant Vosse, who was recently reported in a German official communication as missing, has been found within the British lines. The British airmen have already dropped messages behind the German front giving notification of his death.

Vosse was killed on September 23, while engaged in a spectacular combat with a British airman. He died fighting determinedly and magnificently.

It is peculiar coincidence that the famous French aviator, Captain Guynemer, lost his life about the same time in battle over enemy territory and was reported missing until the Germans found and identified his body. Vosse was killed by a famous British aviator.

CHAPTER IV.

Lydia stepped over the high sill of a doorway to open air upon the main deck aloft the superstructure and gained the shadow of the deckhouse wherein the rudder engine clanked and groaned. When she came to the open space between the deckhouse and the taffrail the moon slipped from behind a cloud, drenching the ship with ghostly radiance, and she stopped short. In no other public part of the vessel could one—or two—have found greater privacy.

Two, at least, seemed to have thought of that. In that fan-shaped space behind the deckhouse, close by the singing meter of the log, Craven stood with Mrs. Merrilees in his arms. Wholly unaware that they were not alone, these two clung to each other, lips sealing lips in the ecstasy of a long and passionate embrace, moveless save as they yielded to the motion of the ship.

Lydia stood rooted in incredulous embarrassment. In that pitiless wash of naked moonlight she could not fail to recognize the woman. She was Mrs. Merrilees beyond question, gowned precisely as she had been that first night out, forever to be a figure of radiant loveliness in the galleries of Lydia's memory.

But that the other, her lover, could be Thaddeus Craven—impossible! A passing likeness to his sturdy but graceful figure—deciding eyes too eager to recognize a beloved parent; it could be nothing more than that. Impossible that he, her father, could be the lover of a woman but little older than herself!

But before she could recollect her wits and slip quietly away Craven abruptly lifted his head and looked directly at his daughter; and now she knew him positively. Though his jaw dropped, his mouth gaped, and his eyes stared prominently from a countenance that in a twinkling darkened portentously above the blank pallor of his shrunken face, in every lineament he was Thaddeus Craven of the semipalmated youthfulness, showed never a line to declare he wasn't thirty-one but a round decade older.

For a moment whose tension lent it the length of many, father and daughter remained transfixed and staring. Then his emotion communicated itself to the woman in his arms. Startled and wondering, she unveiled her eyes, caught a shadowed glimpse of the third figure, disengaged, and drew away. And Craven suffered this without a sign to indicate that he had not forgotten her, maintaining his poise and stare with a fixity that, penetrating Lydia's confusion, stirred her curiosity.

Taking one step toward him, she paused again, lifted one hand in a gesture at once apologetic and appealing, and said flatteringly, "Daddy—"

With visible effort Craven pulled himself together and made an attempt to speak; but only a husky whisper rattled in his throat. Then his glance veered uncertainly to Mrs. Merrilees.

Abruptly it was, overcoming her astonishment, precipitated the situation. The blush that had shadowed her exquisite face ebbed again, leaving it incomparably fair. She threw back her shoulders and took full advantage of her inches.

"Really, Miss Carteret—" she began; and then her voice of crystal clearness broke in a cool and tinkling laugh.

"Oh, do forgive me, Mrs. Merrilees! I never dreamed—I expected to find my father alone—"

"Father!" With that iteration of superb insolence, Mrs. Merrilees became once more completely mistress of herself; and if her tone cried scorn upon a presumptuous girl, her look demanded explanation of the man.

But Craven had needed no more time to make good his recovery. It was his familiar self who stepped into this breach, amiable, unruffled, perhaps a shade too devil-may-care; but to balance that there was a not unbecoming ring of deference in his voice. "I'm afraid," he said, "my surprise knocked me silly for a moment. Lydia, I'd no idea you were on board; but you seem already to know Mrs. Merrilees, Betty, permit me to present my daughter."

"Your daughter, Tad?" There was unpropitious railery in the woman's tone.

Craven replied only by a bow.

"Do you realize this is my first intimation that you were asking me to become a stepmother?"

"I've much to tell you, Betty," Craven answered with grave simplicity; then, turning to his daughter, "Lydia, Mrs. Merrilees has just done me the honor to promise to become my wife, and—the truth is—"

"To come out!" Mrs. Merrilees supplied incisively.

He laughed a little awkwardly. "Exactly! I mean to say, it was all quite unpremeditated. It isn't fifteen minutes since we found we—ah—loved each other; since when I—have been rather too preoccupied to advise Mrs. Merrilees of all my affairs. In another hour, of course, she would have known. As it is if the fact of my prior marriage—"

"Tad!" Mrs. Merrilees interjected with a spirit that commanded his deference. "We're neither of us fools. Don't overdo things. You're talking stupidly—quite unlike yourself. I don't care to hear more until you've found your bearings; and I want time to find mine, into the bargain. That's fair, isn't it?"

"Nothing more so," he affirmed cheerfully.

"Then I'll leave you to your—family reunion!"

Fugitively Craven's eyes conveyed what was at once a demand and an appeal. But before Lydia could respond Mrs. Merrilees anticipated, with a quick movement crossing to drop her hands lightly upon the girl's shoulders. "My dear Miss Craven!" she said with an odd little catch in her voice. "I'm not sure yet I ought to call you Lydia; but I'm awfully fond of your father, and—and if I can get over what doesn't seem an unfair suspicion that he's kept me too long in the dark about you, I shall probably marry him."

"I can't wish him greater good fortune," said Lydia quietly.

"You are a dear! And so beautiful—! I'm jealous. Do you think, Tad, it is wise to have two blondes in one family? Don't answer, please. It's a riddle I must solve to my own satisfaction before I listen to you again. But—I'm serious—think it over."

With a transient tightening of her grasp on Lydia's shoulders, a pressure that conveyed a hint of friendliness, the woman turned away.

"No!" she insisted when Craven promptly ranged himself at her side. "Let me go for tonight, Tad. I'd prefer to be alone to think things out. Tomorrow, perhaps—"

Her smile flashed uncertainly toward Lydia as she disappeared round the shoulder of the deckhouse.

Craven delayed, however, barely long enough for a word, "Wait here—I shan't be long."

Lydia said nothing, but watched him go with eyes confused with pain, she who had found herself suddenly relegated from the status of a well-beloved child to that of a stumbling block in the path of her father's ambition, who could no longer doubt that he had planned to keep her existence secret until his marriage to this Mrs. Merrilees of the fabulous fortune should be a consummated fact.

She stood desolate amid a debris of illusions, who had never known a mother, and now had lost a father. Her eyes filled. He hadn't even kissed her after five years' separation! Resting arms upon the taffrail, she turned a forlorn face to the night-clad sea, her mood fraught with vast disconsolation.

A footfall sounded behind her, and she wheeled sharply about to join issue with her father. But it was Peter Traft who, briskly rounding the deckhouse, pulled up short at sight of that tense young person, Lydia, with her shoulders back, her chin up, and defiance a glimmer in her eyes.

"I beg your pardon—" He peered eagerly to make certain; for the moon was just then thinly veiled in cloud. "It's Miss Carteret, isn't it?"

"Yes, Mr. Traft," said the girl quietly, relaxing. "Good evening."

He seemed puzzled by her manner, started to say something, reconsidered sharply, then ventured with engaging deference, "It's good to see you up and about again."

"It feels pretty good, thank you," she said, with a smile that gave him courage.

"Hope I didn't startle you, galumphing into your solitude without warning. Fact is, I was looking for old Tad Craven. We're needing a fourth. I don't suppose you know Craven, though?"

"Oh, yes, I've known Mr. Craven a long time."

"Really? He's a wonder, isn't he?" Traft exclaimed with enthusiasm. "Everybody's friend—not an enemy in the world. I don't believe there's a better-liked man in New York—our New York, that is."

"Your New York? You see, I've always lived in England, and have lots to learn about—home."

"Sheer snobbery on my part," Peter admitted cheerfully. "I meant the very small part of New York that we infest, whom my friend Mr. Martin likes to call the 'idle rich.' If he only knew!"

"But are you?"

"I'm afraid I'm idle enough; but as for riches, I'm poverty's poor relation."

"But what do you do?"

"Oh, I play a good hand at bridge, a fair racket at tennis, and am always on hand to fill in when somebody doesn't show up for dinner." The least trace of bitterness flavored this gratuitous account of himself, and the persuasion was accompanied by an uneasy laugh. "In short, I'm what your English friends call a waster. But please don't think that I'm bidding for serious consideration."

"I understand," the girl said quietly. "I didn't mean to bore you, either."

"You didn't; but you made me think—and wonder."

"Why I'm content to be—so useless?"

She nodded, with her shadowy smile. A wry grin answered that. "You certainly take the curse off of it," Traft averred. "Candid like yours is good for the egotism. The register of my self-esteem is now subnormal."

"I didn't mean to be unpleasant, Mr. Traft."

"Don't, please. Thus far you've done me good; but if you say more, betray the least real interest in me, I'll get chasty and need taking down again. And I'm forgetting Craven."

"He was here only a few minutes ago, and promised to come back before long."

"Then may I wait? You don't mind?"

"No," said the girl. "Indeed, I've something to tell you. You've praised him to my face, and that makes me want to tell you. I'm not Lucy Carteret, really, Mr. Traft. My name is Lydia Craven. Thaddeus Craven is my father."

"Oh, I say!" Peter stared incredulously. "Not Tad Craven's daughter! You're serious?"

"Quite."

He nodded. "I see you are. But—well—you have surprised me. I don't suppose a soul who knows him would believe Tad Craven anything but a convinced bachelor."

So it was true—Craven had never mentioned his daughter to his friends! Staring seaward, Lydia worked her hands together gently; and, watching her closely, the man saw her face fugitively convulsed. And wisely he held silence.

"Mrs. Beggarstaff knows," the girl said presently, "and Mrs. Merrilees, and I dare say by tomorrow all his acquaintances on the ship will know. So, you see, I'm not violating his confidence. Only you spoke of him so warmly that you made me want you to understand." A quaver touched her tone; but she persisted: "I'm afraid I've made a great mistake—embarrassed him horribly, turning up this way. But I didn't know he was a passenger. I supposed, of course, he was at home—in New York."

Much of Peter's charm lay in his instinctive recognition of those times when it is wisest to say nothing. Nobody could leave everything unsaid in a way more eloquent of sympathetic comprehension. So he stood very still, covertly watching her face and wondering.

"I couldn't help it—They forced me to it—the people I lived with in London. I knew it wasn't right, because I didn't love him. How can one marry a person one doesn't love? But when I wrote to daddy he wouldn't even answer, and I couldn't help it—I had to run away! And now, of course, he's furious with me—turning up here like the bad penny."

"Why should he resent that? I don't see why he couldn't have told us he had a daughter—especially one like you! It seems to me, the innocent bystander, that Tad hadn't any right to pose—"

"Don't! We mustn't misjudge him. You're his friend; surely you ought to make allowances for him. If I can, I'm sure he must have had his reasons—good enough reasons, if we only knew. Why must he take the world into his confidence?"

Dumfounded, Peter stared; then remembered himself that woman nature was a singular thing, its mental processes defying masculine analysis. "You're right," he asserted meekly, after a pause. "Of course you're right! I've known Tad Craven a long time and pretty well, if he is a bit older, and I know he wouldn't do anything dishonorable or calculated to hurt anybody. He's not that kind."

Impulsively Lydia's hand went out to Peter's; but in the long instant that they sat hand in hand and eye to eye, each smiling a trace consciously, signals of distress showed in her waver-ing face, and within his grasp the pressure of her firm young fingers lessened until reluctantly he released them.

"What is it?" Peter asked gently.

"Only my presumptuousness—inflicting you with my troubles, demanding your sympathy, as if I'd any right whatever!"

"I'm your father's friend, at least."

Miss Craven, and—such as I am—if you care to think of me as your friend too. I'll be very glad—not to say vain-glorious!"

She wouldn't have been a human girl had she looked country. A suspicion of mischief lightened the smile with which she regarded him, head judiciously inclined a bit to one side.

"Mrs. Beggarstaff seems to think well of you—"

"She's kind-hearted—and easily amused."

"How you do continually cry yourself down! What is one to think?"

"When a man has the grace to speak humbly of himself, Miss Craven, listen with gratitude and amazement: truth is rare music in this world!"

"Yet you urge your friendship upon me."

"It is all I have to offer," he dropped for a moment his bantering tone: "poor currency, perhaps, but not counterfeit; lightweight, but without alloy."

GHOSTS ALWAYS WHITE?

NO, HERE'S A BLACK ONE

Deputy Sheriffs Solve Mystery When

They Obtain Confession From

Negro Boy.

Fayette, Mo.—The well grounded notion that ghosts are always white and shimmery was given a setback here when Deputy Sheriffs Dollard and Robinson brought in Jack Black, a negro as dark as his name, from the Missouri River hills. Black had been playing spook so cleverly around the farm of young Albert Rainsberger that Rainsberger had contemplated selling out and moving away from Howard County, and the whole countryside had become stirred up by the nocturnal visits.

Rainsberger lives with his wife on a farm in the edge of Boonsboro. For two weeks so many mysterious things happened around the home, without any apparent cause or sequence, Rainsberger became greatly disturbed. The thing which disturbed his sleep and destroyed his appetite was the mysterious lights which were flashed on him at night.

The glare of the lights would illuminate momentarily the inside of his home and then would disappear without even giving him a chance to look for the clever manipulator. He shot in the direction of the lights on one or two occasions, but he heard and saw no one.

But perhaps the most mystifying evidence of ghosts were the tracks which he saw in the light snow at his front door one morning. The tracks leading to the door were small, almost dainty, while those leading from the doorstep were huge.

What human being could thus change his pedal extremities and bewilder the occupant of the house? Things became so unendurable Mr. and Mrs. Rainsberger left home one or two nights and when they returned they found their furniture turned topsy turvy as if the genius of Hallowe'en had made a visit out of season. Half burned eggs were found under the ice box. Things were misplaced, but nothing was taken away.

Finally Mr. Rainsberger appealed to Sheriff Dollard and spent a night at the Rainsberger home, but he saw no ghosts. He later sent his deputies, Kirk Dollard and W. H. Robinson, who spent a night with the Rainsbergers.

The two deputies visited Jack, a negro boy who lives in a shanty near the Rainsberger home and who is employed by Mr. Rainsberger. While they were there they saw a very large overshoe under the bed. They asked Jack about that overshoe and the truth about the nocturnal ghosts came out in a deluge of narrative punctuated with laughter.

Jack was unable to explain fully to the justice court here his motive for such conduct, but it is believed he was coached by some one who was envious of the prosperity of the Rainsbergers.

IN BED 20 YEARS.

BUT ALWAYS HAPPY

Gifted Cripple Sends Greetings to All Mankind on Occasion of New Year

New York—"I never see a cloudy day! It's because I make my own sunshine. Everybody else can do the same!"

From his "mattress grave"—his bed—which he has not left in twenty years, Charles Noel Douglas, called "Uncle Charlie," poet, playwright, song writer and purveyor of sunshine, sends this message broadcast with a "Happy New Year!" to all mankind.

I This remarkable man never sees the bright lights or gaiety of Broadway, but has written such song hits as "The Cozy Corner Girl" and "I'm Not That Kind of a Girl," written 700 other song lyrics and edited a sunshine page in a magazine for thirteen years.

"I'm always cheerful because I figure I ought to have been dead for twenty years," he says. "I was stricken with an obscure nervous disease and they told me I was an incurable cripple. My first thought was to beat the poor farm."

"I had been an actor. I knew what the public wanted. I borrowed pen and paper and between twitches of pain wrote a song. I sold it for $20."

"From that day I realized there was something in the world for me to do, and I've been doing it."

"I find joy in creating stories, songs and verses that bring sunshine into the lives of others."

In connection with his magazine work "Uncle Charlie" has organized a league of young folk, every one pledged to do "sunshine work." Thus this league he has brightened the lives of thousands of poor, helpless shut-ins.

At 50, still a helpless, hopeless invalid, Douglas has won success and brightened the lives of thousands of shut-ins.

FINDS WAY TO SAVE MEN FROM U-BOATS

Sailors Equipped With Oxygen Apparatus Can Leave Divers at Great Depth.

A method of saving lives from wrecked submarines has been invented by a German engineer named Draeger. It is in use not only in the German, but in other navies. The method is described as follows:

The damage to the U-Boat will not always be so extensive that the midships cannot give refuge to the crew. In this case there need be no despair of rescue, even if great depth of water makes the work last several days, or if the lifting of the wreck is impossible. The screw is protected against death thru suffocation for several days by an air purifier, which is always in operation when the craft is under the water.

The Draeger disinfectant separates automatically the air which has been breathed from the injurious carbonic acid and other foul gasses and freshens it again with the new oxygen for rebreathing.

If a submarine is unable to come to the surface by its own power it sends a buoy up on a cable. The glaring red buoy indicates to searching rescue ships the exact position of the sunken U-boat. Furthermore, a phone from the submarine is connected with the buoy.

After a few days, the regularly repeated air examinations show that the purifying apparatus is not going to hold out, the crew must leave the boat to escape suffocation. Rescue from a great depth is made possible by means of a lifting and respiration apparatus. The device not only makes it possible for the wearer to breathe under water for at least an hour, but it also carries him up to the surface from a depth as great as 180 feet and helps him to swim on the surface for hours.

The most important part of the apparatus is an oxygen respiration device with automatic disinfectant. Then there are the respiration sack carried on the back like a knapsack, and the mouthpiece with nose clasp for closing the nostrils and the necessary connecting hoses.

The air which has been breathed passes thru the hose into a so-called potassium case, where it comes in contact with grains of potassium hydrate and sodium hydrate, which absorb the poisonous carbonic acid and eventually are converted into potash. The purified air then mixes with oxygen from the oxygen tank, flows to the respiration sack and is ready to be breathed afresh.

When the moment comes to leave the boat the bottom valve of the submarine is opened, so that the boat entirely fills with water, for only then can the windows be opened. The windows are opened and the first man grips the buoy cable and is carried upward by the driving power of his tightly filled respiration sack and his swimming vest.

BANANAS DECLARED CURE FOR MANY ILLS

South American Says They Have Made Him and His Friends Well.

Now the way to health is declared to be the lowly banana—and authority for the statement is none other than Thomas A. Edison.

When Gen. Rafael Reyes, former president of Colombia, South America, arrived in Washington, D. C., a few days ago on a diplomatic mission, a friend remarked that he was looking much better than when he was in the capital two years previous. The general is 65 years old.

Then the former Colombian president revealed the secret of his health. Bananas, he asserted, were responsible for his condition. He said Mr. Edison had advised him to eat them, and quoted the inventor in explaining the nutritive value of the food.

That Mr. Edison held such a view previously had not been generally known.

"General," said Mr. Edison, in giving his simple health formula, "the stomach is like the boiler of a steam engine. It must be kept clean to work with regularity. Chemical analyses have been made of all the fruits and vegetables of the temperate and tropic zones, in search for one which would give strength to vital cells by containing the three elements essential thereto—nourishing food and tonic to purify the blood, phosphorus for the brain, and, what is more important, an efficient and mild laxative for the stomach."

"Every morning, two hours before rising, eat one or two very ripe bananas—the peel must be black—and masticate them carefully. Immediately afterward drink one large glass of very cold water. For two hours afterward lie in bed, which facilitates the cleansing of the stomach and the assimilation of the phosphorus and nutritive substances."

"I have not failed one day in the last two years to follow this beneficial regime," said General Reyes, and it has given me back my health. Numerous friends in Patagonia, Chile, Ecuador, Peru, Panama and other countries where I have traveled and to whom I gave this remedy have affirmed its efficacy."

"Unfortunately, it is difficult to change one's habits, and out of perhaps one hundred individuals there will only be two who possess the energy to follow the banana course of treatment. The treatment relieves or cures dyspepsia, heartburn disorders of the liver and kidneys, and even obesity. For children it is excellent, also for weak and enemic persons. I give this great cure to the world, that everybody may profit by the wise advice of Mr. Edison."

Straw was employed by the Egyptians for making bricks (Exodus v. 7, 16). It was chopped and mixed with the clay to make them compact and prevent cracking.

FINAL DRAFT OCT. 17

687,000 Men Will Be in Camp November 1.

Seven Million Remaining Registered Men to Be Examined Soon—Other Levees Are Planned.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The final 15 per cent of the drafted men will be called October 17.

The entire 687,000 men will be in cantonments under intensive training by November 1.

This information was made public at the war department, together with the fact that within two weeks President Wilson will authorize Marshal General Crowder to proceed with the examination of the 1,000,000 registered men not called in the present draft.

In addition it was stated a new draft is under discussion, although a tentative date has not been set. Soon approximately 100,000 men from the National army cantonments will be transferred to National Guard camps to recruit the militia to war strength. A similar number of men will be drafted to keep the National army camps full. Instead of a new big draft it is likely a series of drafts ranging from 50,000 up will be resorted to. These will keep the National army camps full as various units sail for France.

Meanwhile the provost marshal's office is concentrating to have the entire present draft mobilized by November 1. Approximately 400,000 are in the 16 cantonments. More than 250,000 additional will begin to mobilize on Friday. By October 17 the full 85 per cent—with the exception of certain negro conscripts—will be in the camps, and then the movement of the remaining 103,000 men will begin.

America will have set the record of having selected, examined, drafted, summoned and mobilized an army of 687,000 within little more than three months.

Miss Gudahy to France Soon. Milwaukee, Oct. 3.—Miss Helen Gudahy, daughter of Patrick Gudahy packer, expects to sail for Europe next month to drive a Red Cross hospital supply automobile in France. Miss Gudahy has thoroughly fitted herself to make good in her new work.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR "BANTY"

Little 19-year-old Rooster Is Guest of Honor.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Having attained the remarkable age of 19 years, a pet bantam rooster owned by Gilbert Alexander, of this city, was the guest of honor at a party given by its owner. Nineteen guests, one for each year of the bird's life, and hereafter will and mostly youngsters, were in attendance. The bantam occupied a most advantageous position at the head of the table, where it was fed such delicacies as it would eat. About the only luxury it refused was ice cream. Angel food was its first choice.

HOLD RUSSIANS FOR BLAST
Charged with Explosion in U. S. That Killed 133.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 3.—With the arrest of two Russian Socialists in Media during the progress of a trial of fellow Socialists, a solution of the mysterious Eddyston ammunition corporation explosion on April 10, which cost 133 lives, seems at hand.

Mitchell Lagoda, formerly of this city, and Nicholas Klekner of Thirty-fourth and Spruce streets, Philadelphia, former shell inspectors at the plant, were arrested upon a charge of murder by Sheriff John E. Heyburn.
Both men had been appointed by the former czar.

Klekner is reputed to be one of the I. W. W. leaders in this country, and at the time of the inquest of the explosion horror was the star witness in relating the gross carelessness of allowing I. W. W. members to hold inspectors' posts at the powder plant.

hind the lines destroyed 15 Gotha air-

Paris, Oct. 3.—The German cities of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Stuttgart,
Trier and Coblenz were bombed Monday night by French aviators in retaliation for German aerial attacks on French cities. The following official announcement was given out:

"The Germans made a new attack on the town of Dunkirk. The bomb-ment was very violent, causing serious material damage. It is reported there were numerous victims among the civilian population.

"In reprisal for the bombardments carried out by the Germans against Bar-Le-Duc and Dunkirk, our aviators threw down bombs on the towns of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Coblenz, Trier and Stuttgart.

"Our boarding airplanes made numerous expeditions, in the course of which 2,120 kilograms (4,664 pounds) of explosives were thrown on military buildings in Roulers and 6,000 kilograms (13,200 pounds) on the railway stations at Metz-Sur-Wolpny and Thionville, the airfield at Chambley, cannons at Spincourt and Tilly and munition depots at the Longueau farm, where a violent explosion was observed.

"Two German airplanes were brought down yesterday by our pilots and four others were compelled to land in a disabled condition."
